Annabel Lahz is an architect with an impressive track record in strategic design and architectural thinking. She is committed to developing innovative project specific solutions responsive to their environment, budget and purpose. She graduated from the University of Queensland with Honours and received the Queensland Institute of Architects Medallion, the Board of Architects Prize and a University Medal. Annabel completed the first year of her B.Arch degree at the Architectural Association, London in Peter Wilson's unit.

She has worked at a cross section of architectural practices, most notably Lindsay Clare Architects in Queensland and was an Associate at Lawrence Nield and Partners Australia in Sydney (now Bligh Voller Nield Architects).

Since joining lahznimmo architects with partner Andrew Nimmo in 1996 she has maintained and developed her interest in public architecture and place making and encouraged the practice to pursue a diversity of project types and scales.

Annabel maintains an ongoing interest in architectural education and has delivered numerous professional lectures and participated as guest juror on a variety of award panels.
